A select exhibition in a private gallery

The art of Kazuo Kadonaga

reveals nature's hidden designs. Born into a family that owned a cedar forest and a lumber mill in central Japan, the artist has two works in his current gallery show that appear to be simple, 13-foot logs. But look closer at Wood No. 5-CI, from 1984: The cedar has been sliced lengthwise into 800 veneer sheets and then restacked, allowing tensions inside the ancient tree trunk to manifest in the way the layers buckle and feather. Wood No. 8-D (1977) is a log that was crosscut at regular intervals. The slices cracked in ways that produce, when reassembled, a pattern reminiscent of a player-piano scroll. At Nonaka-Hill, 720 N. Highland Ave., Los Angeles, (323) 450-9409. Prices range from $4,500 to $100,000.
